The "Master Logger" designation is open to persons who are loggers. By definition, a logger is one who makes his/her living in the day-to-day business operations of cutting, harvesting and removing timber. The logger does not have to be the person who actually fells trees to be marketed in a timber operation, but if not, he/she must be the person who does have the direct responsibility of overseeing the cutting, harvesting and removal of timber by persons directly supervised by them. The logger is the person who holds the Master Logger designation, not the logging company for which he or she is employed. If the Master Logger changes employment, the Master Logger designation will move with the logger. To receive the Master Logger designation, the logger must complete the initial two-day workshop and have a minimum of one year of logging experience. Master Loggers are required to take Continuing Logger Education (CLE) each year (four hours, FSFI-SIC/SAF approved) in order to maintain their designation.

Nonloggers (timber dealers, foresters, site prep operators, tree service operators, consultants, etc.) attending the initial two-day workshop will receive a certificate of completion as an "Other Participant". Other Participants do not hold the Master Logger designation. Following completion of the workshop, Other Participants are required to take Continuing Logger Education (CLE) each year (four hours, FSFI-SIC/SAF approved) in order to maintain their designation.*
